JOURNEY TO SCOTLAND.

Almost giddy with the many pleasures and occupations of London, I had outstayed the last fashionable linger; and, on appearing again, after a fortnight's confinement with the epidemic of the season, I found myself almost without an acquaintance, and was driven to follow the world. A preponderance of letters and friends determined my route toward Scotland.

One realizes the immensity of London when he is compelled to measure its length on a single errand. I took a cab at my lodgings at nine in the evening, and drove six miles through one succession of crowded and blazing streets to the East India Docks, and with the single a isfortune of being robbed on the way of a valuable cloak, secured a birth in the Monarch steamer, bound presently for Edinburgh.

I found the drawing-room cabin quite crowded, cold supper on the two long tables, everybody very busy with a knife and fork, and whiskey and water and broad Scotch circulating merrily. All the world seemed acquainted, and each man talked to his neighbor, and it was as unlike a ship's company of dumb English as could easily be conceived. I had dined too late to attack the solids, but imitating my neighbor's potation of whiskey and hot water, I crowded in between two good-humored Scotchmen, and took the happy color of the spirits of the company.

A small centre table was occupied by a party who afforded considerable amusement. An excessively fat old woman, with a tall seraggy daughter and a stubby little old fellow, whom they called "pa;" and a singular man, a Major Somebody, who seemed showing them up, composed the quartette. Noisier women I never saw, nor more hideous. They bullied the waiter, were facetious with the steward, and talked down all the united buzz of the cabin. Opposite me sat a pale, severe-looking Scotchman, who had addressed one or two remarks to me; and, upon an uncommon burst of uproariousness, he laughed with the rest, and remarked that the ladies were excusable, for they were doubtless Americans, and knew no better.

sengers turned in. The next morning was Sunday. It was fortunately of a "Sabbath stillness;" and the open sea through which we were driving, with an easy south

With this exception, I have not seen a person with a Bible in his hand, in travelling over half the world.

The weather continued fine, and smooth water tempted us up to breakfast again on Monday. The washroom was full of half-clad men, but the week-day manners of the passengers were perceptibly gayer. The captain honored us by taking the head of the table, which he had not done on the day previous, and his appearance was hailed by three general cheers When the meats were removed, a gentleman rose, and, after a very long and parliamentary speech, proposed the health of the captain. The company stood up, ladies and all, and it was drank with a tremendous "hip-hip-hurrah" in humpers of whickey. They don't do that hurrah," in bumpers of whiskey They don't do that on the Mississippi, I reckon. If they did, the travellers would be down upon us, "I guess," out-Hamiltoning

We surrounded St. Abb's head into the Forth, at five, in the afternoon, and soon dropped anchor off Leith. The view of Edinburgh, from the water, is I think, second only to that of Constantinople. The singular resemblance, in one or two features, to the view of Athens, as you approach from the Piræus, seems to have struck other eyes than mine, and an imitation Acropolis is commenced on the Calton-hill, and has already, in its half-finished state, much the effect of the Parthenon. Hymettus is rather loftier than the Pent- at the Counting Room of the Post. ready, in its half-finished state, much the effect of the land-hills, and Pentelicus farther off and grander than Arthur's seat, but the old castle of Edinburgh is a noble and peculiar feature of its own, and soars up against the sky, with its pinnacle-placed turrets, superbly magnificent. The Forth has a high shore on either side, and, with the island of Inchkeith in its broad bosom, it looks more like a lake than an arm of sea. It is odd what strange links of acquaintance will develop between people thrown together in the most casual manner, and in the most out-of-the-way places. have never entered a steamboat in my life without finding, if not an acquaintance, some one who should have been an acquaintance from mutual knowledge of friends. I thought, through the first day, that the Monarch would be an exception. On the second morning, however, a gentleman came up and called me by name. He was an American, and had seen me in Boston -Soon after, another gentleman addressed some remark to me, and, in a few minutes, we discovered that we were members of the same club in London, and bound to the same hospitable roof in Scotland. We went on, talking together, and I happened to mention having lately been in Greece, when one of a large party of ladies, overhearing the remark, turned, and asked me, if I had met Lady ____ in my travels. I had met her at Athens, and this was her sister. I found I had many interesting particulars of the delightful person in question which were new to them, and sequitur, a friendship struck up immediately between me and a party of six. You would have never dreamed, to have seen the To the Editor of the Morning Post : adieux on the landing, that we had been unaware of each other's existence forty four hours previous.

Leith is a mile or more from the town, and we drove into the new side of Edinburgh—a splendid city of stone and, with my English friend, I was soon installed in a comfortable parlour at Douglas's-an hotel to which Immensity of London—voyage to Leith—society of the steam—packet—analogy between Scotch and American manners—strict observance of the Sabbath on board—Edinburgh—unnation than the Tremont, standing in a magnificent spuare, with a column and statue to Lord Melville in the centre, and a perspective of a noble street stretching through the city from the opposite side.

We ained upon grouse, to begin Scotland fairly, and nailed down our sherry with a tass o' Glenlivet, and then we had still an hour of daylight for a ramble.

"ISCOCK'S ELECTRIC ANODYNE.—

U. S. Revenue Cuttor Hamilton, April 13th, 1835.

To Charles G. Greene, Editor of the Morning Post:

Sir—My attention having been recently directed by recommendation of a friend, to a novel and simple remed) for the green and tooth scale (to which mariners are necoliarly expussions). "No, sir! Have you ever been in America?"

"No, sir! but I have read Mrs Trollope."

"And I have read Cyril Thornton; and the manners delineated in Mrs Trollope, I must say, are rather elegant in comparison."

I particularized the descriptions I alluded to, which will occur immediately to those who have read the novel I have named; and then confessing I was an American, and withdrawing my illiberal remark, which I had only made to show the gentleman the injustice and absurdity of his own, we called for another tass of whiskey, and became very good friends. Heaven knows I have no prejudice against the Scotch, or any other nation—but it is extraordinary how universal the feeling seems to be against America. A half heur incog. in any mixed company in England I should think would satisfy the most rose-coloured doubter on the who have certified unblicly to its efficacy.

Sir—My attention having been recently directed by recommendation of a friend, to a novel and simple remed; for the ague and toothache (to which mariners are peculiarly expressed directly by the Druggists of this city, by the made of Hiscock's Electric Anodyne; and public credulity have feetual cures of these common but often for midable complaints; I am desirous of asking the favor of your columns in egard the article referred to, for the benefit of others. This article I have recently had occasion to use myself, under a very aggravated attack of the ague, tooth ache and ear ache; and the Revenue Cutter of this port, to which I am attached, leaves no doubt in my mind, that the article possesses extraordinary virtues for all those complaints. Such has been my experience to the use of this article recently, that I should not think my medicine chest properly filled for a voyage, without it; and I recommend it to ship masters and heads of families as an article, in my judgment of intrinsic value for the ague and toothache (to which mariners are peculiarly expressed and advertised for sale by the Druggists of this city, by the advertised for sale by the Very respectfully, your most ob't servant,

ANSWER TO THE EXPOSITION.

Twas a remark made by a celebrated writer, who possessed considerable k-owledge of the human character, that the the titer part of valor is discretion," and supposing that the shrewd and calculating Jesse Thompson had by an experience of some thirty years became nequainted with this self-evident maxim, it was with no small degree of surprise that I read his exposition to my netice to the public, which has been published in the Moraing Post. It is unaccontable to me that an individual, who, before I have done with him shall be proved a wrong-doer, so far as his conduct relates to myself, should exhibit a want of both the virtues mealtoned in the above quoted proposition. He who attempts to draw another into a controversy should have something more than mere assertions to sustain him throughout the same. Unfortunately for Mr Thompson, these are the only props he leans on for support, and they will not always keep him from falling. If he will but consult his conse ence, that faithful mentor will assure him, that with respect to me, he is the aggressor. It is thus truly remarkable, that an individual of his sagacity and worldly prudence should not have perceived in his coarse and vulgar abuse of me that he was expessing the vulnerable points of his character to a severe castigation. In this respect he has committed himself completely; and had I sought for, I could not have found a better opportenity, than his own reduobtable communication published under his own hand has afforded me, to inflict on him well merited chastisement. But, before proceeding to dissect his holgenday statement, his thing of shreds and patches, it has become incumbent on me, through his vile interpretation of my motives, which be cannot know were my heart in his hand, "The wounded bird flotters." As well and under a high state of cultivation—two story dwelling has become incumbent on ane, through his vile interpretation of my motives, which he cannot know were my heart in his hand, nor shall not while it is in my custodly, to enter my serious disclaimer against the base design of calumntating the character of S. T. Farwell, Esq. This gentleman, standing deservedly high in the estimation of his friends and the community at large for integrity and intelligence, with whom I never exchanged a word in my life, nor about whom I never texthanged a word in my life, nor about whom I never exchanged a word in my life, nor about whom I never exchanged a word in my life, nor about whom I never exchanged a word in my life, nor about whom I never exchanged a word in my life, nor about whom I never exchanged a word in my life, with the least of the shall not while it is in my custodly to disclose some parts of Jesse Thompson. With him I have nothing to do. In my notice to the public his name is not mentioned. Its object was simply to disclose some parts of Jesse Thompson's dishonorable to due to towards my self. It intimated that the letter signed by Mr Farwell was written at Jesse's instance and published by his own request for his single benefit. I yet think so, and moreover, I have evidence of these facts. Now, no man of intelligence, acquainted with his mother tengue, isasmuch as Mr Farwell's name is not unded to therein, can by any fair means whatsone of these facts. Now, no man of intelligence, acquainted with his mother tengue, isasmuch as Mr Farwell's name is not mean what Jesse Thompson says it does—an fattempt to calumniate S. T. Farwell, Esq.?

His construction therefore of my notice, while on the one hand it betrays the weeked event.

His construction therefore of my notice, while on the one ers, which can be placed in any position required—being all His construction therefore of my notice, while on the one hand it betrays the wicked intention of making it speak a language which no rule of interpretation, that I know of, will justify, for the purpose of involving me in a difficulty with the gentleman in question; so on the ther, shows him to be ignorant of the radiments of he English language, a fact abundantially established from the style and tenor of the entire context of his belligerent epistle. The deductions he makes therein show an obtase literary percention, and grove him to possess It is said it was like the sound of a trumpet. There are some men who are so feverishly fond of greatness and fame, that with every stride they make towards their darling objects, they are continually pla tog themselves in the same riductious position before the commandity with the person who, who achieves the middle of the best foreign and domestic marbles, which they will self as foreign and domestic marbles as foreign and domestic marbles, which

An Ass is known by his braying.

The sneer on Messrs Andrew Warkins and Aaron Dow, in his exposition, two gentlemen, who, if they should exchange their respectability and good sense with Jesse Thompson, would not, I apprehend, be greatly benefited by the bargain—I shall pass over in silence, because they both are competent to defend their own rights when assailed. Mr Thompson says any form of language, the customary construction of which, leaves on the mind of the reader a false impression is a lie. 2— To this idea which he has borrowed from Paley, I readily assent. It is somewhat remarkable, however, that his own conduct has not been regulated by the admonition which this expression of the great moralist conveys. A Priest Mr Jesse Thompson certainly is,—a teacher of morality he likewise professes to be, and of course concernant with the precepts of morality, the Bible Now unless he strictly conforms to his professions, he brings the cause which he pretends to support into shame and disgrace. Does he so practice on theory of the sale of their flags in this city within the last three years, and that he is conveys. A Priest Mr Jesse Thompson certainly is,—a teacher of morality he likewise professes to be, and of course concernant with the precepts of morality, the Bible Now unless he strictly conforms to his professions, he brings the cause which he pretends to support into shame and disgrace. Does he so practice on the correct plays a struct into an asser! To that monitor within his own breast, who will not suffer him to do wrong with impunity.

N. B.—As this Flagging will come as low as bricks for paving the side walks, those who are in the building line are my structured to be support into shame and disgrace. I demand of this casoist whether, when one man asks another what a certain barrel contains and he tells him floor, which turns out on examination to be a different material, does not the person who investigated the contains and the contains a conta ferent material, does not the person who lives this wrong inferent material, does not the person who lives this wrong inthe leaves on the mind a wrong impression, tell a lie? That the reader may understand this allusion I will here state, that after many interviews with Jesse Thompson by myself, for the purpose of adjusting our differences and bringing him to a fair settlement with me, which proved abortive; and being convinced that he was purchasing, compounding, using and vending my medicines contrary to law, I took with me two witnesses, in whose mouths every truth shall be established, and vi-ited his Infirmary for the purpose of ascertaing the extent of his depredation on my rights. Having examined part of the establishment, I at length went into his Buttery or Flour room, in which were barrels. I asked him what they contained. He replied flour. I then put my hand into them and took therefrom a quantity of spice bitters—[These bitters were fraudulently made, without my knowledge or consent, for his own profit]—the barrels being full of the same article; and turning to my friends exhibited it to them, and exclaimed, their gentlemen see what kind of flour Mr Thompson keeps in his house!—
This is one of many similar transactions of Je-se Thompson with one, which show up his character for truth and veracity.
In commenting on that part of my note wherein I charge him with assuming to preside over an Infirmary, he uses this ph ase enclosed in brackets, bold assumption the presidency over one? ferent material, does not the person who lives this wrong inwith assuming to preside over an infirmary, he uses this phrase enclosed in brackets, bold assumption the presidency over one's own house." Now here is another display of his characteristic enclosed in brackets, bold assumption the presidency over one's own house." Now here is another display of his characteristic inpudence and jesuitism. Mr. Thompson purchased either of me or my agents a family-right, and after the revocation of his agency he doubtless would be authorized to prepare and administer to his family, and to them only. But his general agency being revoked, he still goes on and under his family right, administers, prepares and sells my medicine-to any body and every body who may choose to visit his infirmary, thus violating the letter and spirit of his family right. And this is what he calls presiding over one's own household. Verily this is an additional fact of his nice skill in interpreting the rules of construction. Mr. Thompson says "who my followers are I know not." But if he does not know them all, one at least he must remember, to wit, a certain Mr. John Emptson who followed him from Ballston to this city and whom he took some pains to introduce into society in this place for the purpose of lecturing down infidelity and atheism, but who before he had accomplished his object, was obliged to abscond, being publicly branded as an infamous scoundrel for an insult on a young lady belonging to this metropolis.

Towards the close of his letter, he talks with much assurance about negative evidence, as though he understood its nature and the rules by which it is governed. He says: because there is but one Infirmary in this city, I am absurd enough to form a conclusion, that what is not in a letter can have no existence. Now, gentle reader, whether the charge of absurdity must rest on me, for drawing the inference on Mr Farwell's negative evidence, that there is but one Infirmary in this city, I ome a conclusion, that what is not in a letter can have no existence. Now, gentle reader, whether the charge of absurdity must rest on me, for drawing the inference on Mr Farwell's negative evidence, that there is but one Infi mary in the city, or on Jesse Thompson, for not doing so, I leave you t ty must rest on me, for drawing the inference on Mr Farwell's negative evidence, that there is but one Infi mary in the city, or on Jesse Thompson, for not doing so, I leave you to judge. I submit to you still further, whether there is not a design at least by implication, to scure to himself and followers the benefits of my system of practice, in the letter as originally published in the Courier of March 17, 1835? That letter is headed with the words. The Thompsonian System. Now, as there is no P in my name at all, there is, to say the least, a say innuendo, that the authorship of this system should be accribed to him. no P in my name at all, there is, to say the least, a sty innue node, that the author ship of this system should be a cribed to him. If you take in connexion with this statement, the additional facts, that wherever the system is spoken of in the letter in question, the P is used—my name being mentioned once only, and that, too, spelled with a P—together with all the cures having been performed at his loftmary, I think you will acquit me of being absurd in suspecting lesse Thompson of alming at the monopoly of which I spoke in my first letter to the public. Even Jesse Thompson himself was conscious that the letter, as originally published, would bear this construction—for on his showing me the same, I remonstrated with him on the injustice of sending out a document into the community calculated to make such an impression. He has, therefore, in his sub-equent publication of that letter, in hand brills, and in calculated to make such an impression. He has, therefore, in his sub-equent publication of that letter, in hand birts, and in the Boston Post, as an advertisement, left out the obnoxious letter which I have mentioned. In conclusion, Jesse Thompson charges me with slander and falsehood. These are grave altegations indeed. But let me see whether I have been guilty of them. In my notice to the public, there are three distinct and separate charges set forth. First, that I revoked his agency last Navember, for a breach of confidence and trust. Is that false them. # TUESDAY, MAY 12, 1835.

Connecticut.-The Legislature of this State convened at Hartford, on Wednesday. In the Senate, the Hon, John Stewart was chosen President pro tem, and or, the Lieutenant Governor, was conducted into the Senate Chamber, where the oath of office was administered to him, and he took his seat as presiding officer was elected Speaker on the second ballot, by 25 majority-S. K. Wightman of Middletown, and W. P. 2 o'clock, both Houses being assembled in Convention, Gov Edwards appeared and took the oath of office, and on the following day communicated his annual Message to the two Houses. The Message is a plain businesslike document, a considerable portion of which is devoted to a consideration of our monetary system. It recommends suppressing small bills-measures for effeeting a reform in the Militia System through the constituted authorities of the U. States-an accurate and thorough geological and mineralogical survey of the State -- an amendment of the laws regulating the admission of freemen, and the manner of voting in that State. On Friday, Mr Wightman introduced a preamble and resolutions instructing the Senators in Congress from that State to vote in favor of expunging from the record of the Senate the resolution of censure upon the President which passed that body in May, 1834. They were made the order of the day for this day, and will unquestionably be adopted, although it is very doubtful whether they will be obeyed.

Rhode Island .- Mr Francis' majority for Governor is 102-Mr Engs's for Lt. Governor, 19. Messrs King, Weeden, Steere and Denman, (whig) are elected Senators by majorities of 26, 17, 7 and 198-and Messrs Almy and Cory (democrats) are also elected Senators by majorities of 11 and 4. Both Houses of the Legislature adjourned over to Monday at 3 o'clock, without fixing upon a time for the choice of Senator. A. C. Greene was elected Attorney General-Henry Bowen. Secretary- and John Sterne, General Treasurer.

A Hard Case .- The Tollmen, upon Warren Bridge, complain that they are taunted, jeered, and abused in a most unjustifiable manner for exercising their duty in demanding toll. This is highly improper, for they are no more to blame for the continuance of the burden which has excited the indignation of the community, than other individuals, and in demanding toll, are only performing an obligation their station imposes upon them, and which, by no means, renders them fairly obnoxious to the displeasure of the Indigestible Food.-We relate the following circumstance without fear of being accused of merely telling a snake story, knowing the facts from the most unquestionable authority. A few days since, but a few miles distance in Jersey, a large hawk, seemingly in great hunger, was discovered hovering over the barn-yard of a cottage, eagerly watching his opportunity to pounce upon the poultry below. After repeating his visits for a few days, he was fired at, but being missed, did not afterwards make his appearance. In the course of a few days the gentleman who made the shot, was walking over the neighboring grounds, when he discovered a dead hawk, apparently but a short time deprived of life. Upon examination, the cause of the hawk's death was discovered to have been the swal lowing of a living rattle-snake, which had eaten out of the stomach of the bird, and nearly through the skin, near the craw. The snake was about eleven inches long. The hawk was no doubt the same that eagerly watched the poultry, but fearing to return, and becoming famished for want of food, was obliged to eat his snakeship. The stomach of the hawk contained no food-it was stuffed, and now graces the private collection of a naturalist .- N. Y. Gaz.

Almost a Riot .-- On Wednesday evening a mob of several hundred persons collected at the book store of Taylor & Gould, in the new Brick Church Chapel at the junction of Park Row and Chatham streets, in consequence of a disgraceful outrage committed upon the property of a poor old woman who had kept an apple stand on the sidewalk, near the book store, for a long time. It appears that the gentleman in the book store got offended at the old woman for placing her stock of goods between the wind and his nobility and kicked her apple stand, candies, peanuts, &c. into the gutter. They were proceeding forthwith to place Messrs. Taylor & Gould's stock of books in the same predicament, when the police arrived and dispersed them. The old lady had occupied the stand unmolested for several years. and she thought it a great pity that her "poor innocent little children should be robbed of their bread in so unceremonious, and inhuman a manner." So think we.

Dr Lieber, in his letters to Germany, has a laugh at the American names, but especially at those of New England. That to an American who has some acquaintance with the German appeliatives, is rather laughable. He smiles at the number of Scripture names which he hears. We remember some years since, to have been somewhat scandalized at seeing a bundle of goods directed to "J. Christ, of Nazareth;" subsequent experience has brought us acquainted with many of that patronymic, and with others less euphonous, but not on that account the names of less estimable people. But a German writer should not smile at American names .- U. S. Gaz.

itant affections, solely by the aid of appropriate apparatus, recently constructed by the undersigned for the excitation of Galvanic Electricity in the system.

Instruments suitable for this purpose are so small and compact that they may be carried in the pocket; and so mild in their operation, and so simple in their construction, that children can use them as well as adults: and in many cases of disease they may be used simultaneously with other remedies. The ratio of cure and alleviation of that form of Dyspe; sia which is attended with constipation &c, has been from this remedy alone, (medicine by way of the mouth and stomach entirely discontinued,) three to four in every five cases, as far as known to the inventor of the Galvanic Apparatus.

Instruments, with directions for their proper application, and other information relative to the beneficial effects derivable from this first of curative means may be obtained of JOSEPH M. SMITH 138 Westbir 1835.

The following certificates of cure and relief, are a few of the whole number that have been given, and that might be obtained from sources of the first respectability.

The Galvanic Apparatus, invented by Daniel Harrington, of this city, for the cure of disease, is familiarly known to us. By its aid, under Providence, we have been enabled to exchange annoying disease for comfortable health. Dyspepsia, accompanied by constipation, that in our cases had resisted other remedies for years, soon yielded to this novel mode of cure, and in the course of a few weeks, our expectations were more than realized. Judging from our own experience, we are of opinion that this useful apparatus will be found innocent, where it may not prove more or less efficacious, and that it may be safely intrusted to any hands. With us its application has not been attended with any painful inconvenience at all; nor did we find it necessary to observe, for the time being, any rigid restrictions touching diet. That there are many thousands rigid restrictions touching diet. That there are many thousands of suffering invalids in this country, who could as readily exchange disease for health, by this new mode of cure, as we change disease for health, by this new mode of cure, as a have been enabled to do, we cannot for a moment doubt, JOHN S. RIDDLE, ELIAKIM LITTELL, Philadelphia.

Being myself afflicted with the inconvenience and disease incident to a confined state of the bowels, I was induced to use Mr Harrington's Galvanic Apparatus, from which I havefound the most effectual relief. I therefore cheerfully recommend it persons laboring under similar affections

We have been using the Gaivanic Instruments, invented by Mr Daniel Harrington of this city, for a disordered condition of the digestive organs of long standing, accompanied by obstinate constipation, a confuse state of the head, and by general debility; and we have experienced that degree of relief that has enabled us to relinquish medicine by way of the mouth, finding the new remedy preferable—and we believe that by its aid we are gradually gaining health and strength, which was not the case previous to our using it. The application has involved neither pain or risk with us. involved neither pain or risk with us.
